

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The nature of this publication is the result of the generosity and availability of a group of people who organised, sponsored, collaborated and participated in the international scientific meeting *Design Objects Conference: Musealization, Documentation and Interpretation*¹. Each of these entities made this conference possible; likewise, the book's materialisation is now being presented.

A special salutation to the institutions of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities of the University of Porto and ESAD/College of Art and Design Matosinhos, respectively represented by the research units CITCEM – Transdisciplinary Research Centre Culture, Space and Memory, FCT – Fundação para a Ciência e a Tecnologia, Reitoria da Universidade do Porto and esad—idea, Research in Design and Art, for enabling, both financially and logistically, the gathering of a group of professionals who have been critically reflecting on the different dimensions of knowledge that construct the design object, that problematise and expand musealization practices.

We also acknowledge the scientific and organising committees, led by Alice Semedo, Associate Professor of Museology and Heritage Studies at the University of Porto; Joana Santos, Coordinating Professor, Assistant Director and Director of the Master of Design at ESAD/College of Art and Design; and José Bártolo, Professor at ESAD/College of Art and Design, Scientific Director of esad—idea, Research in Design and Art and currently a Senior Curator at the House of Design in Matosinhos. They were responsible for selecting all the authors present at the conference and in this edition.

We are particularly grateful to the authors participating in this book for the kindness and enthusiasm with which they offered and shared their contributions, expanding from the themes presented and debated during the conference. Their perspectives challenge established disciplinary theories and contribute to the construction of new stories for objects in museum institutions. They are also a valuable contribution to the growth of literature on design objects in museums.

We want to thank Vasco Branco, Cathedratric Professor at the Department of Communication and Arts at the University of Aveiro and Director of ID+ Research
